Dear Dr. Trinkaus,

This letter is extremely belated, but I do wish to thank you very much for writing letters of recommendation to graduate schools on my behalf. Thanks to you, I was accepted at several of the schools. I will be working in research for a year before going on, but fully intend to return to my studies after learning first-hand what life in the laboratory is like.

You are an excellent teacher, and I value the time spent under your tutelage very highly. Your love for your science, and your fluency in expressing it, were informative and inspiring. Additionally, your advice and opinions were influential in helping me to choose a career in the sciences.

I hope your work proceeds well, but more importantly, I hope that you and your wife both remain well for many years to come.

Sincerely,

John Rennie
