Dear Trink,

We are just preparing the programme for the meeting so that we can send it to the printers.

We would like to ask you to do a rather difficult thing, but one which we think you will do better than anyone else would. We would like you to dominate the end of the last afternoon, so that we end with a bang, not a whimper. In other words, would you be so kind as to chair the final discussion and to give a summing up of the proceedings?

You will? Oh, how kind! Thank you so much. Now we will go to the printers.

Affectionately,

Ruth
