Dear Hamburger:

I appreciated very much your recent letter. The lack of emphasis on events in the substratum on the part of so many recent writers on the subject of development seems to me the most serious deficiency in current theories. As you agree so well with me on this general principle we may postpone discussion until we get together again.

If you should attend the meeting of anatomists in Chicago we shall hope to see you then. If not we shall expect to have the opportunity in Woods Hole. We are glad to have good news from your family. Due to the fact that our children are so scattered about we rarely see them, but the news of them is also good.

We are living very quietly and a call from you would be a great pleasure.

Sincerely yours,

Frank R. Lillie
