Dear Dr. Trinkaus,

I will be receiving my Bachelor of Science degree with a major in zoology from the University of Wisconsin in June of 1964. The following September I plan to begin graduate work in the field of developmental biology.

I have become interested in your work in the field of tissue dissociation and aggregation, and I would like a chance to pursue my graduate studies in your laboratory. Is it possible that there is a research assistantship, or a similar position available with your group? My financial situation is such that it will be extremely difficult to do graduate work without some assistance.

Any consideration you can give me will be appreciated.

Sincerely,

John L. Shane
